Mining Review Africa is a bimonthly publication that seeks to support the sustainable development of Africa's mineral resources by promoting human and institutional capacity, the liaison between major and junior mining houses, and the introduction of suppliers of capital and plant to mines. Mining Review Africa is distributed throughout Africa and internationally to decision makers at mines, mining houses and other institutions, including government, academia and industry.

ESI Africa is a quarterly publication. This is a specialist journal that focuses on all aspects of electricity supply and use, including generation, transmission, distribution and installation in Africa. ESI Africa is also distributed throughout Africa and internationally to decision makers within the power and mining industry, and other institutions, including government, academia and industry
